

ADVOCACY

American Civil Liberties Union Directory

Updated August 2005

The American Civil Liberties Union is available to help families who face discrimination because of an infectious disease. Nearly every state has an ACLU chapter office that can refer parents to local civil rights attorneys and advocacy organizations that can help them address disability rights issues.

The main national ACLU office is in New York. There is also a national office in Washington D.C. and a southern regional office in Atlanta. The ACLU's national web site is <http://www.aclu.org>.
